The first class, and high school life begins, winding its way through alleys and hallways concrete and indestructible.
Trivial things are important then —

Cluttered tables
and crowded lines,
Raindrops pelting
black umbrellas
and London Fogs, Taking books and drawing from them, a grade — but more importantly . . . knowledge.

The excitement of bronze mums
and yellow ribbons,
The nagging thought of possible disaster —
Patriotism and pride,
Enthusiasm
The spirit of a goal,

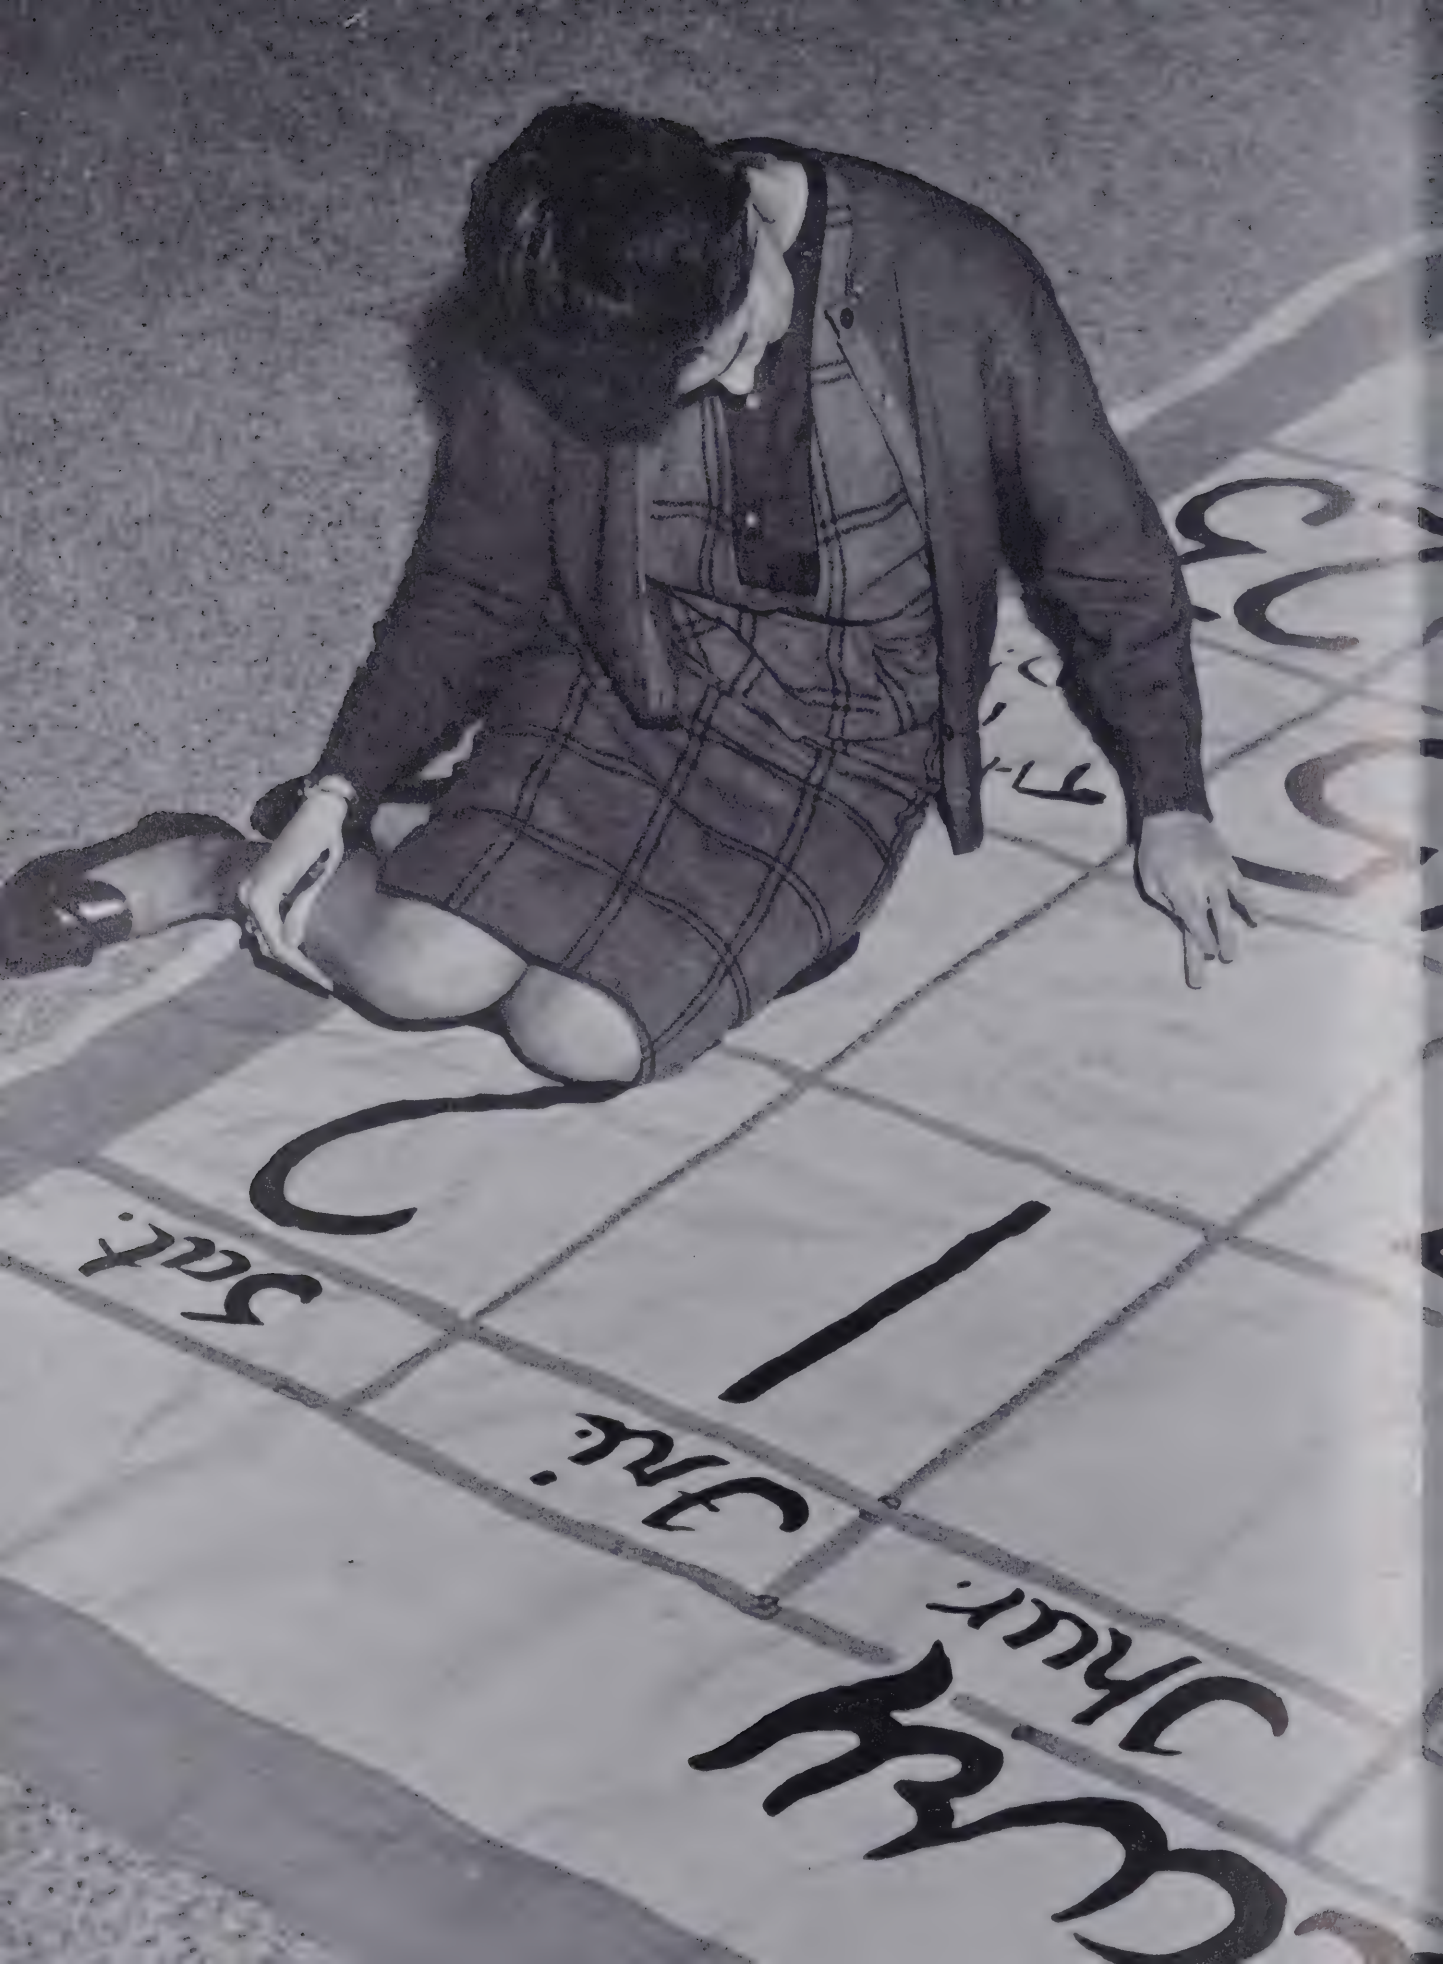

The background of the image features two thick, parallel red diagonal stripes that intersect the white background, creating a dynamic, geometric pattern. The stripes run from the top-left towards the bottom-right.

MAY QUEEN Sherry Graves is a popular and active student at NHHS and is her classmate's choice of Best All Around Girl.

A smile brightens a room . . . and she is there. Natural, friendly, vivacious in a love of life and people—You see her at formation, alert and military; in class, relaxed and attentive; everywhere, buoyant and gracious. A radiance of fresh and earnest beauty . . . May Queen.

Charm and grace . . . the essence of beauty.

MAID-OF-HONOR Brenda Beale energetically serves her school as a cheerleader and Secretary of School Spirit.

Energetically cheering at games, marching down brick streets, touching everyone she meets with a brilliant personal exuberance—this is the spirit of a magnetic personality. Lively, vivacious, gaining beauty through friendliness and charm . . . Maid of Honor.

The classic beauty of New Hanover's May Court complements the simplicity of a modern building.

May Court

The realm of beauty — a world of swaying, bell-shaped dresses and gentle laughter, of charming smiles and gracious personalities — this is the special place that is the May Court.

The sophomore class is well represented in this year's May Court; two attractive girls, Barbara Corbett and Barbara Thompson, were chosen by their classmates as their ideal beauties. A classic blonde, Barbara Corbett comes to us from Chestnut Junior High School, where she served as May Queen. "Sweetie" Thompson is a Roland-Grise graduate, where she was chosen Best All Around girl by her class. Judy Bradshaw and Beverly Crump are the junior class attendants in the May Court. Judy is an NHHS cheerleader and a newcomer to the May Court. Beverly, a social marshal, was a sophomore attendant last year. Seniors Fredi Crisp and Sherry Lackey are also May Court attendants for the first time. Fredi, a striking blonde, is a member of the House of Representatives. Sherry, a majorette and a member of the Hanover Singers, is a petite beauty.

Well chosen and representative, these eight campus leaders epitomize the characteristics that bring beauty to the world and make New Hanover's May Court the loveliest ever.

The after game socials, newest of NHHS dances, emphasize informality and promote better school spirit.

Dim lights and soft music give dances

May Court attendants receive bouquets of flowers at the annual spring dance in their honor.

Judson Watkins and Tina Utsey pause in the spell of the Junior-Senior's Parisian theme.

a mood of fantasy.

In his arms she feels like an angel flying through the clouds. A rainbow of color surrounds her. Moss hangs gracefully from the ceiling; lights of blue, green, and gold shed a dim glow over the room; profusions of flowers embellish the tables; colorful, delicious refreshments become a part of the inevitable festivity. A spring scene, artistically created, brings to mind thoughts of an ideal love, a night of beauty and perfection. English Leather and Chanel No. 5 mingle, mildly penetrating the cool, fresh night air as it drifts through the open door. The laughter of the happy couples near them, the tinkling of Coke bottles, the approving eyes of the chaperones, an occasional flash from the photographer's busy camera, girls' chatter about each others' dresses, boys' chatter about each others' girls . . . activity swirls before her unnoticed, for she hears only the soft, sincere melody of "Moon River." Her heart skips a beat. This dance was saved for him.

King and Queen of Hearts, Earl Crisp and Tina Utsey, display their newly acquired crowns.

Graduation . . . the beginning

Ushers Jim Hall, Herbie Zimmer, and John Wenberg receive instructions for baccalaureate exercises from Miss Russ.

Tassels on their cheeks, tears in their eyes, grins on their faces. It's over . . . Graduation. They were sure they were going to trip on their way to get those coveted, ribbon-tied diplomas, but they didn't. They were sure they were either going to burst out laughing or crying, but rows of calm, composed faces solemnly listened to the baccalaureate sermon.

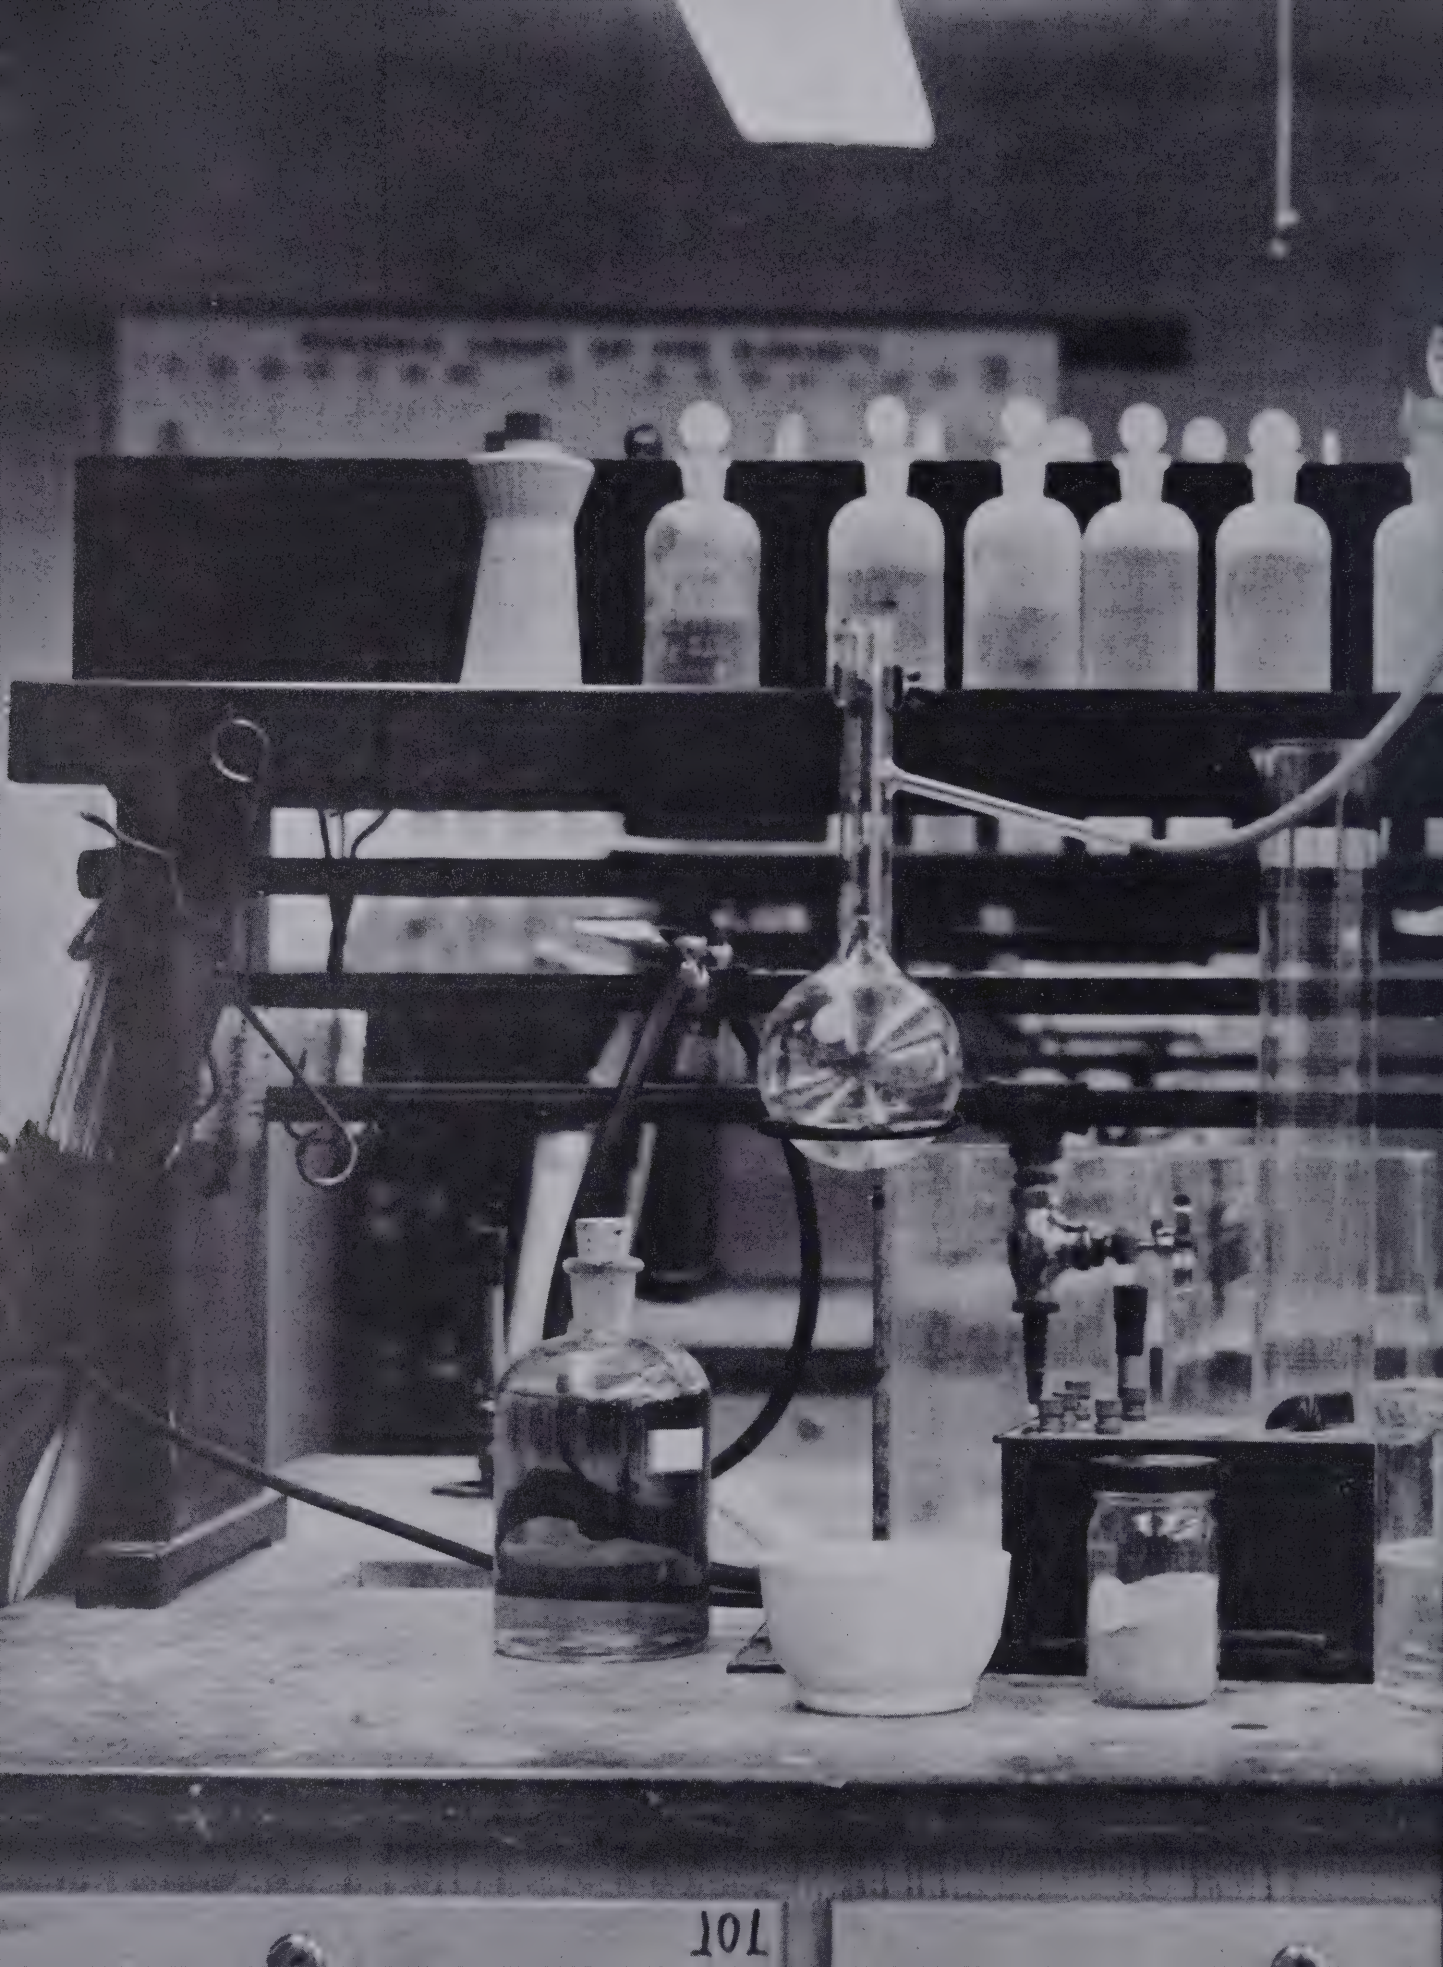

There had been the last minute rush . . . final exams to study for and hurry through, lockers to clean out, speeches to learn, robes to fit and press. And then there was the flurry of getting ready for those house parties at the beach. Now the long-awaited time had come and gone.

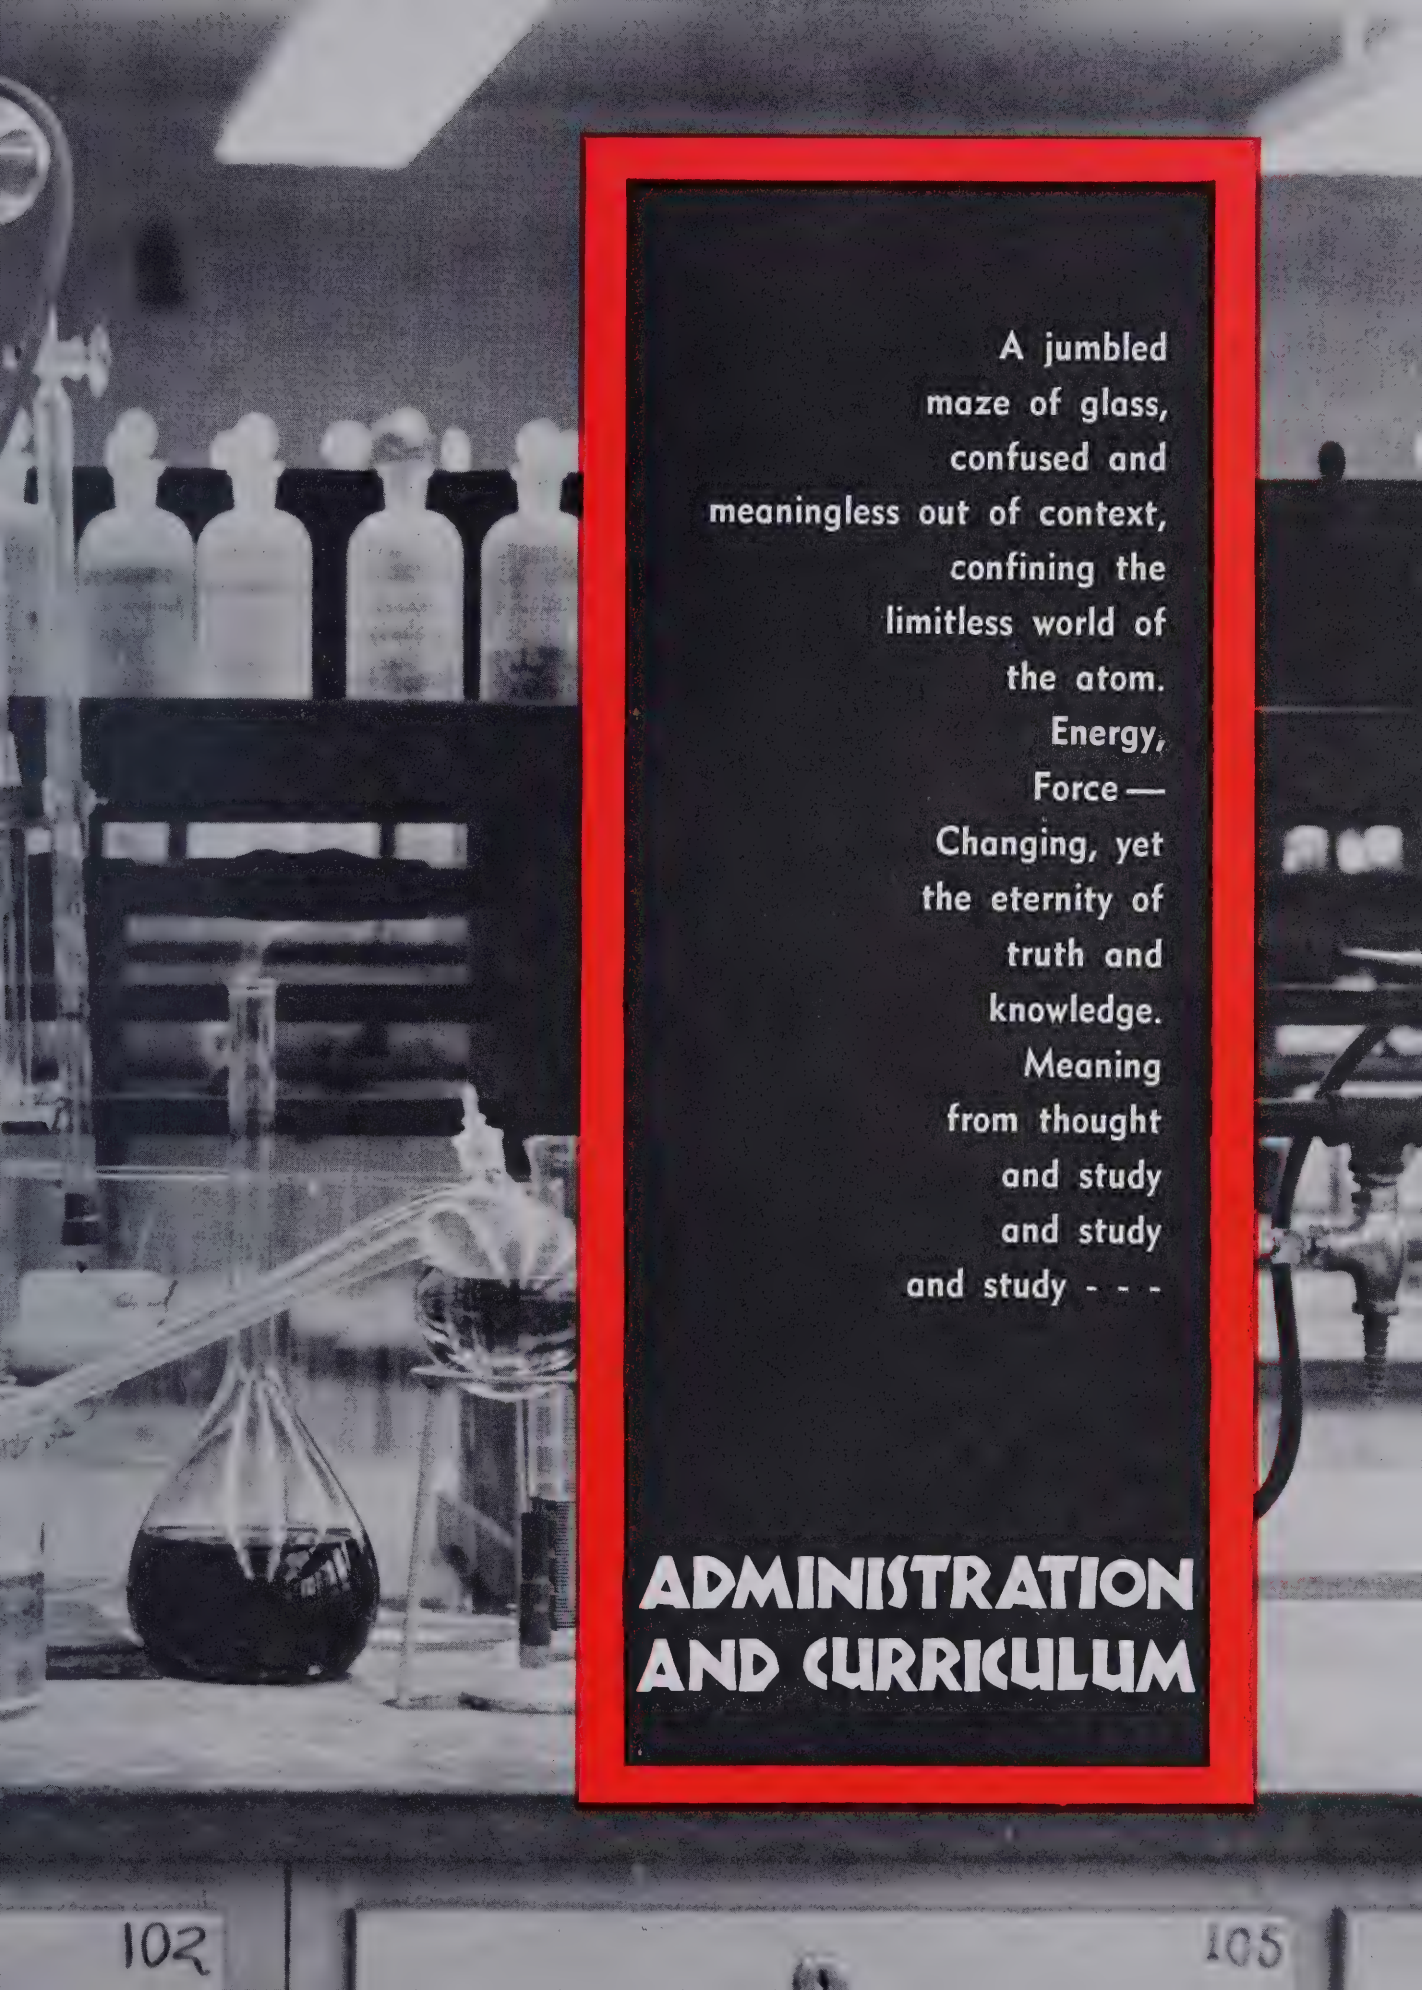

Proud parents hovered like protective mother birds. Plans were made for the big night ahead. Last good-byes were said . . . some for a day, some for forever. Feelings of joy but also a touch of sadness to weave its way in.

Tomorrow? College, perhaps? A job? A home and family? A whole new world to step into. Just tottering . . . on the brink of life, waiting to be pushed in.

Ending, but just beginning.

ADMINISTRATION AND CURRICULUM

Mr. West, principal, pauses in a conversation with Mr. Scott, assistant principal, to answer the telephone.

Friendly, efficient administration

Mr. Capps, Dean of Boys, Plane Geometry, Mrs. Huneycutt, Guidance Counselor; and Mrs. Lane, Dean of Girls, Biology, obtain some needed information at the registrar's office.

A cold stare, a harsh word, and all business close in the shell built by the top heads to distinguish themselves. Shells break . . . with a shoulder to cry on, a word of advice, an understanding smile.

Schedule changes and complaints from September to September. Meetings and officials to cope with. Monday's reports haven't been typed yet! Two weeks vacation? What vacation?

Fears of war are calmed by Mr. West's soothing voice echoing down the halls. Sunshine leaps from Mr. Scott's grin as he sticks his head in the door to check on 205. Heads, (absorbed in a baffling problem), are bent over the desk.

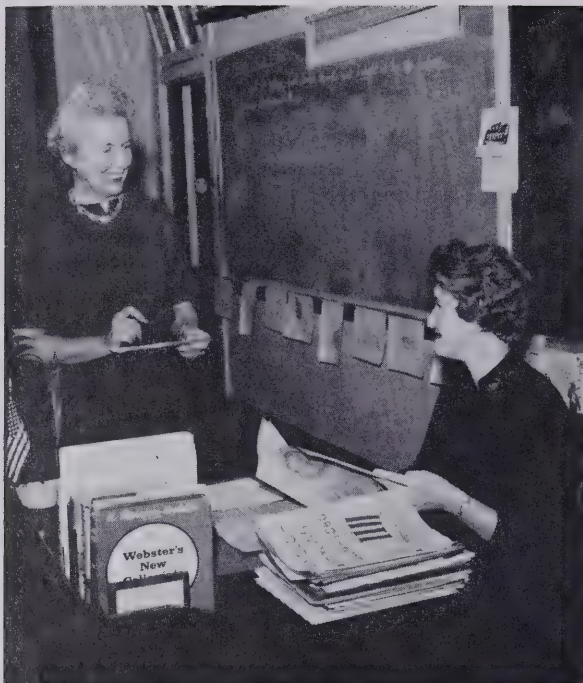

College boards and Kuder Preference Tests to send off. Don't you wish you were an IBM machine? What college should I attend? Go see Mrs. Huneycutt and look at some of her booklets. She knows the answers to all. Do you think they'll let me off to go out of town? The Dean will O.K. your note.

Busy, busy . . . but human.

Miss Montgomery, registrar, finds time to give a pleasant greeting in spite of her busy schedule.

guide school policy.

Miss Wicker, English V, 12, compares ideas for the final exam with Mrs. Lane, English 12.

Mrs. Wright, English 10, 12, Miss Meggs, English 10, IV, Miss Skinner, English 10, IV, enjoy a chat on their way to the Memorial Building.

English is a guiding light toward

Miss Modlin, English III, Journalism, Wildcat Advisor, Miss Dobson, English III, 11, Hanoverian Advisor, and Mrs. James, English IV, Hanoverian Advisor, agree that some lessons need research.

Miss Moore, English 11, Mrs. Gandy, English 9, 11, and Mrs. Weathers, English 10, 11, find a convenient short-cut from the third floor.

Mrs. Younger, English 10, Miss Johnston, English 10, and Miss Stack, English 10, relax in the teachers' lounge.

Miss FormyDuval, English V, Head of the English Department, finds an appropriate example to show to her students.

better understanding.

Will this theme ever be written? A book report tomorrow? Oh, no; What kind of book? A flurry of papers, empty washable black cartridges, ink-smudged fingers on an already worn new grammar book, a half used bottle of ink iradicator—where is that dictionary?

Memory lines are due next week. Now, is that Middle English pronounced suta or sota? What about home room period? I can't possibly get in after school to say them.

A world of grammar, composition, poetry, prose—a world of expression, thoughts, fantasy and reality. What is utopia? Is it describable? To understand is to learn. Is this a quote, or did this saying actually evolve from years of learning to express one's self.

This poetry booklet is incomplete. What is it that Sandburg wrote? Something about jazz- Um—.

The candle flickers; books are closed; a paper, red with comments, lies corrected; and a new theme hopefully awaits approval from the teacher.

Mr. Pigford, Advanced Mathematics, Head of Mathematics Department, brings interest into his classes through the use of geometric models.

Miss Sanders, Algebra II, pauses from her work to answer the door.

Mathematics . . . a myriad of numbers.

Mrs. Turner, Plane Geometry, shows Miss O. Smith, Basic Math, Algebra II, one of the fine geometry projects built by her students.

Miss Scott, Algebra II, Advanced Algebra, and Miss Galloway, Plane Geometry, helps a student with a math problem.

Mrs. Sapp, Algebra I, Plane Geometry, proudly shows Miss F. Williams, Algebra I, an excellent algebra paper.

Col. King, Basic Math, Algebra I, illustrates a problem on the blackboard for his students' benefit.

Lib Fensel puts the finishing touches on a geometric figure.

Numbers and more numbers . . . from one to a trillion. They're just trying to confuse us. Sometimes they fail . . . sometimes we fail.

Graphs, exponents, formulas, and factoring to learn. Myriads of equations to wade through. Rules for this, rules for that—it seems as if I can't even move without reciting a rule. Now what is that law that says . . . ? Have you done last night's homework? Homework, what homework?

Who would like to volunteer to prove the next corollary? Circles, straight lines, arcs, and planes whiz through heads like merry-go-rounds at the circus. Do you have any good ideas for geometry projects? Don't forget, they're due Monday. Have you seen Mrs. Turner's Christmas tree? All those gold and silver glittery ornaments . . . never knew so many pretty things could be connected with geometry.

Eyes are intent on Mr. Pigford's new "machine," the overhead projector. You know, it does save a lot of time. Will you please explain problem ten again? I just don't understand how you manage to get that answer. Heads are bent in earnest concentration. Feet shuffle and paper is crumpled to break the silence. Desks squeak protestingly. Are you going to take trig next semester?

Such is the world of math. Learning to use numbers for being engineers, salesmen, housewives, chemists, secretaries.

One, two, three, four, five . . .

Miss Russ and Mrs. Warren discuss the world situation in their spare time.

Miss Norris, U. S. History, Sociology, and Mr. Meadows, U. S. History, share a common interest in the field of social studies.

Team teaching highlights social studies year.

Col. Logan, Miss Williams, and Mr. Hardee return to their work after lunch.

Have you seen that mass migration out of the student union at the end of third period? Mr. Widenhouse couldn't have thrown a party. What? A government class? That large? Whose's teaching? Mr. Bergeron? "Aw, come on now!" Tests, notes, ideas, requirements for not one teacher but three. Such is the life of an educational guinea pig! But just think of those great controversial discussions Mr. Schurrer is always proposing.

Now just when did The First Continental Congress meet? Minus ten on this discussion question? She asked for my opinion!

Current events, boring days of dates, research papers, days of discovery, sweat, toil, used brains—what a price to pay for education!

Just think, aren't we fortunate to be viewing, not reviewing, history? One day our children will be trying desperately to remember who some man named Shepard was and when the first U. S. orbital was made.

Mr. Bergeron, Head of Social Studies, Government, Mr. Schurrer, U. S. History, Government, and Mr. Widenhouse, Government, Director of Student Activities, experiment with Team Teaching, a new technique at NHHS.

Mrs. Doorley, U. S. History, and Mrs. Whitten, Government Sociology, watch Mr. Blanton, Government, illustrate the use of maps and charts in social studies.

Mrs. Borneman, Biology I, Advanced Biology; Mr. Newber, Biology I; Mrs. M. Smith, Biology I; and Mrs. Millie Williams, Biology I examine the anatomy of a cat.

A glass coil proves a lesson on the properties of light for Mr. Rogers, Physics, Senior Science.

Experiments bring

Probing . . . into the secrets of life and the universe. What is life really made of? Why does the brain function the way it does? How do we know how far away the stars are? Why do different flowers have different colors and smells?

That cat smells horrible. Why dissect cats? Do they really think the DNA molecule may hold the secret of life? Peering wonderingly into the world of a blood cell by microscope, learning theories of heredity, slicing starfish — Biology.

Molecules and atoms, gas laws and formula equations. Lab towels full of sulfuric acid holes, wafting scents of banana flavoring, unexpected explosions with charred remains. Why are these lab checks so hard? — Chemistry.

Let me demonstrate the water displacement theory. Principles of light, heat, sound, and electricity unfold in the mind. Mr. Rogers, how many ping-pong balls do you think would fill the room? — Physics.

This is science.

The Periodic Chart aids Mrs. Emmart, Chemistry, and Mrs. LeGwin, Chemistry, in their experiments.

After hours, Mr. West gathers material for biological research.

knowledge to students.

A human skull holds the interest of Miss Drye, Biology I, and Miss Taylor, Advanced Biology, Head of Science Department.

The race is on! Typewriters click; nimble fingers fly quickly and expertly over the mastered keyboards. The soft, even tap of adding machines is barely audible. Corrections to be made! Numbers to be changed! What was it that the typing text said about column tabulation? How many spaces should I indent? Another time writing test? Is it possible to reach sixty words a minute? Something is wrong with this typewriter. Must be those monstrous pieces of eraser. This bookkeeping machine must be wrong. I know I couldn't have punched that number.

Add again? One more different answer and I'll scream. Why is the problem done this way? If the books don't balance, what is a possible explanation? Telegrams, payrolls, invoices, bills—forms to fill out, statements to make. This cash on hand refuses to balance with my deposits. Will I ever be able to face the world of business?

My shorthand book is filled. Is sincerely spelled with . . . more dictation? My hand is suffering from writer's cramp. Mrs. Ledford, my pull looks like full! Shorthand—expression through symbols.

What does one say in a letter of recommendation? Should this announcement be written on a letterhead? Whose initials do I sign first? How many copies of these letters must I make? How brief should this office memo be? Should I mention the cost of mailing in my acknowledgement of this order? I never knew letters could be so important. English—a major part of business preparation.

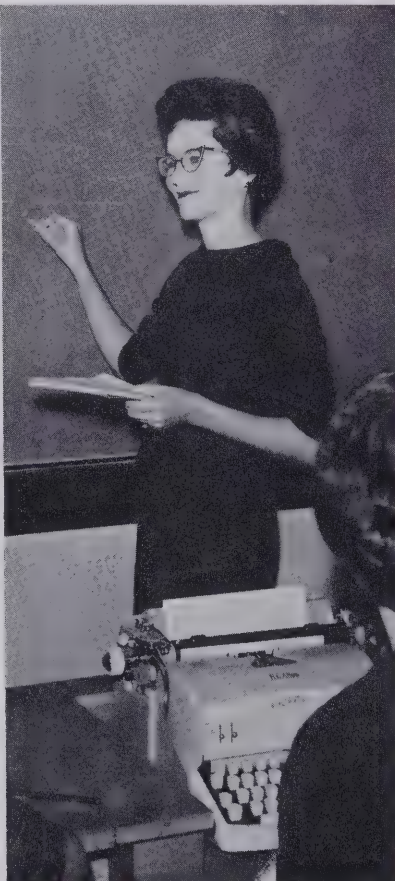

Questions, answers, problems, practice—a never ceasing battle for the better jobs of tomorrow.

Hardworking, ambitious students prepare

A student questions Miss Dubois, General Business, Typing, on correct business behavior.

Mrs. Ledford, Shorthand, Personal Typing, and General Business, places a shorthand lesson on the chalkboard.

Tabulators and calculators are examples of the many machines mastered in the business department.

Mrs. Hood, Bookkeeping, finds her work as director of the school bank interesting and enjoyable.

A bookkeeping student learns to keep a neat and accurate ledger as part of her training.

Mrs. Grubbs, General Business, Typing I, and Mrs. Mintz, Business Arithmetic, Typing I, keep their typing at a high level of efficiency.

for competition in the business world.

Mrs. McDonald, Business Education, dictates an exercise to Mrs. White, Business Education, Head of Commercial Department, as Mrs. Owen, Business Education, prepares her typewriter for use.

Mr. Coleman, Machine Shop I, II, explains the use of one of his machines to Mr. Kovacs, General Metals, Shop Math.

Blueprints hold the interest of Mr. West, Director of Trades, Col. Gorham, Mechanical Drawing I, II, and Mr. McLeod, Trade Counselor.

Students learn well under the careful direction of Mr. Kornegay, Carpentry.

Mr. Pennington, Trades, helps a student gauge a piston in the machine shop.

Trained industrialists design modern life.

The whir of machines, fragrant odors of cedar, piles of sawdust dripping from the work bench, engine parts in scattered array on the floor — industrialism.

Blueprint paper, lines, squares, dimensions, slant-topped drawing boards criss-crossed with afternoon sunlight. Hey! Who took that drawing off the desk? Three hours of work!

Mr. Watters, Machine Shop I, Engines I, II, and Mr. Matthews, General Mathematics, Basic Electricity, leave school after a productive day.

Who's a born mechanic? This engine just won't work. It surely came apart easier than it's going back together. Maybe just a turn of this screw will do it. A-ha! It's running!

Stacks of clean-smelling wood waiting to be cut and concocted into a dozen different things—tables, chairs, chests, shelves.

Learning to be builders of America.

Dwight Peay and Kin Holloway receive expert advice on the intricacies of a radio from Mr. White, Trades.

Coach Fennell demonstrates the proper techniques as Coach Davis gives instructions.

Mrs. Tillitt, Physical Education, demonstrates a basketball shot for the benefit of her students.

Athletics teaches sportsmanship.

Coach Brogden, Director of Physical Education, makes a strategic decision at the NHHS Homecoming Game.

Calisthenics — pushups, those indefinite runs around the gym. Repetition — plays, set-ups, and precise timing, practiced over and over until the mind, tired of facts and figures, cries out to put strategy and ideas into action. Finally, those long awaited games become reality, and from them students gain a new kind of knowledge — an understanding of sportsmanship, fair play, and a pride in the way a game is played whether won or lost.

In a physical education course, calisthenics are a necessity for building a strong body.

Hazard rate reduces as drivers gain skill.

Whoops! Just missed that fender by an inch. Mr. Mintz, are you all right? You look a little pale.

Right turns, left turns, gearshifts, stop signs—Brakes squeak . . . Didn't you see that red light? Why do they make parking places so small?

Hours of study and preparation give the student a thorough understanding of automotive principles and convert the inexperienced novice into an alert and efficient driver, ready to take his place on the road.

All rewarding . . . first perfect park, passing the driver's test, first solo. Safer new drivers are sent out to save hundreds of lives.

Semi Mintz, Driver Education, braves rainy weather to teach his students the best of driving habits.

Truth and inspiration are found in the Bible.

Genesis, Exodus, Psalms, Ruth, Revelation—just names on a page. But actually . . . books containing some of the most world-shaking history and thought ever written.

Digging deeper to find what things really mean, learning a new code for living, trying to find ways to help themselves and others — through the Bible.

Bible student, Cameron Coltharp, brings inspiration to NHHS through a weekly devotion.

Miss Spence, Bible, helps her students gain new purpose and direction through Bible study.

Miss Lathrop, Latin II, Head of the Language Department, explores Rome's past.

Miss Archbell, Latin I, II, Mrs. Maynard, Spanish I, II, and Mrs. West, French I, II, discuss the merits of NHHS' new language laboratory.

Bonjour! Buenos dias! Snatches of French . . . snatches of Spanish spoken with halting accents. Wrong pronunciation or verb tense perhaps, but still . . . a desire to communicate with other people.

Comprehension tests, dialogues, vocabs, and idiomatic expressions. Never will forget that pastry at the French Club supper. Do you think the language labs will be finished by spring?

World unity . . . through language.

Tenses, cases, and forms enliven languages.

Mr. Farrow, Spanish I, II, Miss Overton, English 10, Spanish I, and Miss Boles, English 11, French I, exchange ideas for the language labs.

Mr. Adcock, Instrumental Music, coaches Nancy Adams in the sound proofed practice room.

Drums of all types add depth and character to a musical composition.

A saxophone croons . . . and there is music.

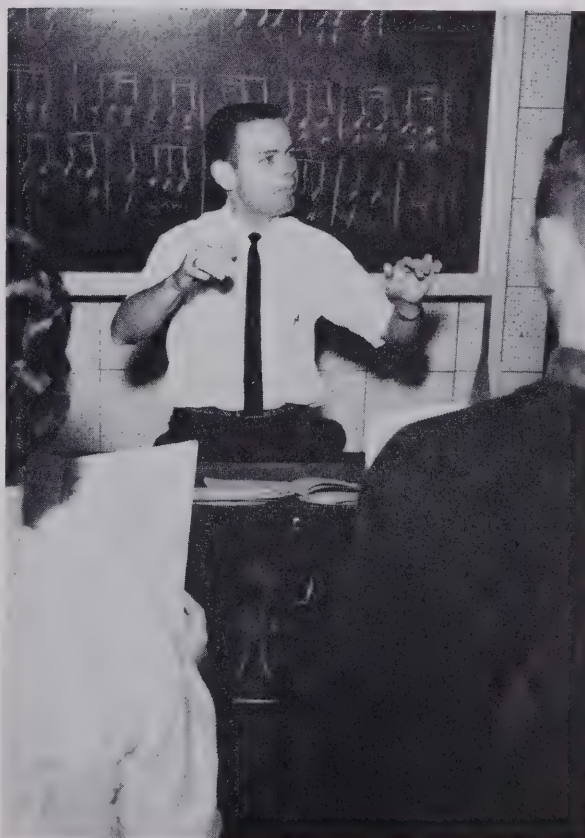

Strains of music weave through the halls and out the windows. Stillness is shattered like a pane of glass, and a student raises his head, caught unaware from deep thought and jerked into reality.

Music . . . My clarinet sounds like it's got the croup. Help! The braid's coming off my band uniform! The operetta's tonight! Do you know your part? Forty voices blend into one, and the director breathes a contented sigh.

Room 113 is the scene for hours of practice that make NHHS choral groups outstanding.

The Hanover Singers excell under Mr. Alexander's skillful direction.

Miss Brown, Home Economics II, and Mrs. Martin, Home Economics, I, II, peek in on a savory delicacy.

Terry Newber labors over her sewing project.

Mrs. Baynes, Nursery School, and Mrs. Harrell, Nursery School Assistant, take their charges to the park to play.

Home economics offers opportunities unlimited.

Carefully watching her student's progress, Mrs. Paulson, Head of Home Economics Department, gives a few timely tips.

The bell rings. Seamstresses hurriedly pick up scraps. Whose scissors are these? . . . Mrs. Paulson, have you seen the collar to my suit? . . . What is the price of that dreamy velveteen?

Another stream of ambitious homemakers file in, bewildered by the look of exhaustion on the face of their teacher. China and crystal suddenly become very important, and the question of whether one should pick out her silver pattern now seems to be of major concern.

Meanwhile, back at the range, the chef for the day cries in dismay — the once golden-brown cake has suddenly turned charcoal black! Perhaps all is not lost, however, for practice makes perfect, and the icing is supposed to be fail proof.

Carole Benton gets en garde for her role in "Twelfth Night."

Mr. Guthmann, Dramatics, Speech, Stage Crafts, coaches Diane Copeland in the art of public speaking.

Places, lights, action . . . the show must go on.

Lights, costumes, scenery, make-up — another world, another life. Time is demanding!

"If music be the fruit of love, play on." There is a pause, followed by an indignant cry of, "You gave me the wrong cue." Rehearsal proceeds with the usual interruptions and the maximum of misgivings. Students labor on into the night over unfinished scenery and detailed costumes.

Activity ceases. Silence gives way to deafening applause from the audience.

Art . . . an outlet for creative moods.

A splash of color—a dull, grey canvas comes alive with an artist's conception of life. The teacher looks over a class of smocked students. Hands seem to talk as the brushes held in them paint a scene of sheer beauty, or a face filled with longing; hands portray meaning as the fingers dip time and again into oily paints to create a lasting impression; hands shape or build from paper mache and clay. The creativity of talented pupils, artists in an age of impression and expression, brings admiration and envy from fellow students, for who can help pausing briefly before the main showcase to view the works of the exceptional without realizing that a yearning for beauty can be fulfilled by an accomplishment in art.

Mrs. Gearhart, Art I, II, III, applies the finishing touches to a canvas.

Mr. Gearhart, Industrial Cooperative Training, and Mr. Wright, Distributive Education, examine the work of an industrious student.

DE, ICT prepare students for future careers.

David Woodcock practices his skill behind the meat counter of a local market.

12:30! DE and ICT students rush for their cars and then try to grab a quick lunch before reporting to their jobs. Books are dropped, notebooks are closed, and thankful thoughts of an ending school day seem to engulf the minds of our young business men and women.

Yet—"I'm sorry, but you can't get these pizzas wholesale." "Sir, are you sure that you left your umbrella in this office?" A finished day? Not quite. Selling becomes a challenge; advertising opens up a new world of ideas; office life is new and sometimes confusing; inventory creates headaches; but the praise of a well-pleased employer is invaluable.

Kent Lee persuades a customer to buy one of the latest madras sport coats.

Judy Mintz finds the library an appropriate place to keep up with current events.

Books . . . dog-eared and smudged, stacked neatly on sagging shelves. Dusty and worn but still full of knowledge. They don't go out of style just because they were written 100 years ago.

The library . . . not just a resting place for books but a bustle of activity. Decorating for the annual tea — Christmas trees and shiny stars, red and green ribbon and snowflakes and cookies. A source of information — library slips and encyclopedias, Reader's Guide and dictionaries.

Look at all those new books! Crisp pages, bright covers, stark black print on white. Do you have a copy of 1984?

Miss Cromartie, librarian, prepares one of the daily newspapers for display in the library.

Books . . . the student's key to knowledge.

Miss O'Keef, Librarian, inspects crepe-paper Christmas trees, the decorations for the Library Tea.

Mrs. Lodor, Dietitian, finds little time to rest during her busy day.

Mrs. Brinson, RN, adds a soothing ointment to the eyes of a weary student.

Efficient assistants promote

The Student Union cooks prepare bushels of French fries daily.

Mrs. Davis, clerk, reads the finished product as Mrs. Powell, secretary, mimeographs the daily bulletin.

school pride.

Another hectic day at New Hanover. Students arrive and, frantically trying to prepare for a day's work, never pause to notice that the halls have been cleaned, the classrooms straightened, blackboards erased; never stop to think that someone must keep the vast inventory of electrical and classroom supplies, and that preparing food for 2400 students is such a demanding job.

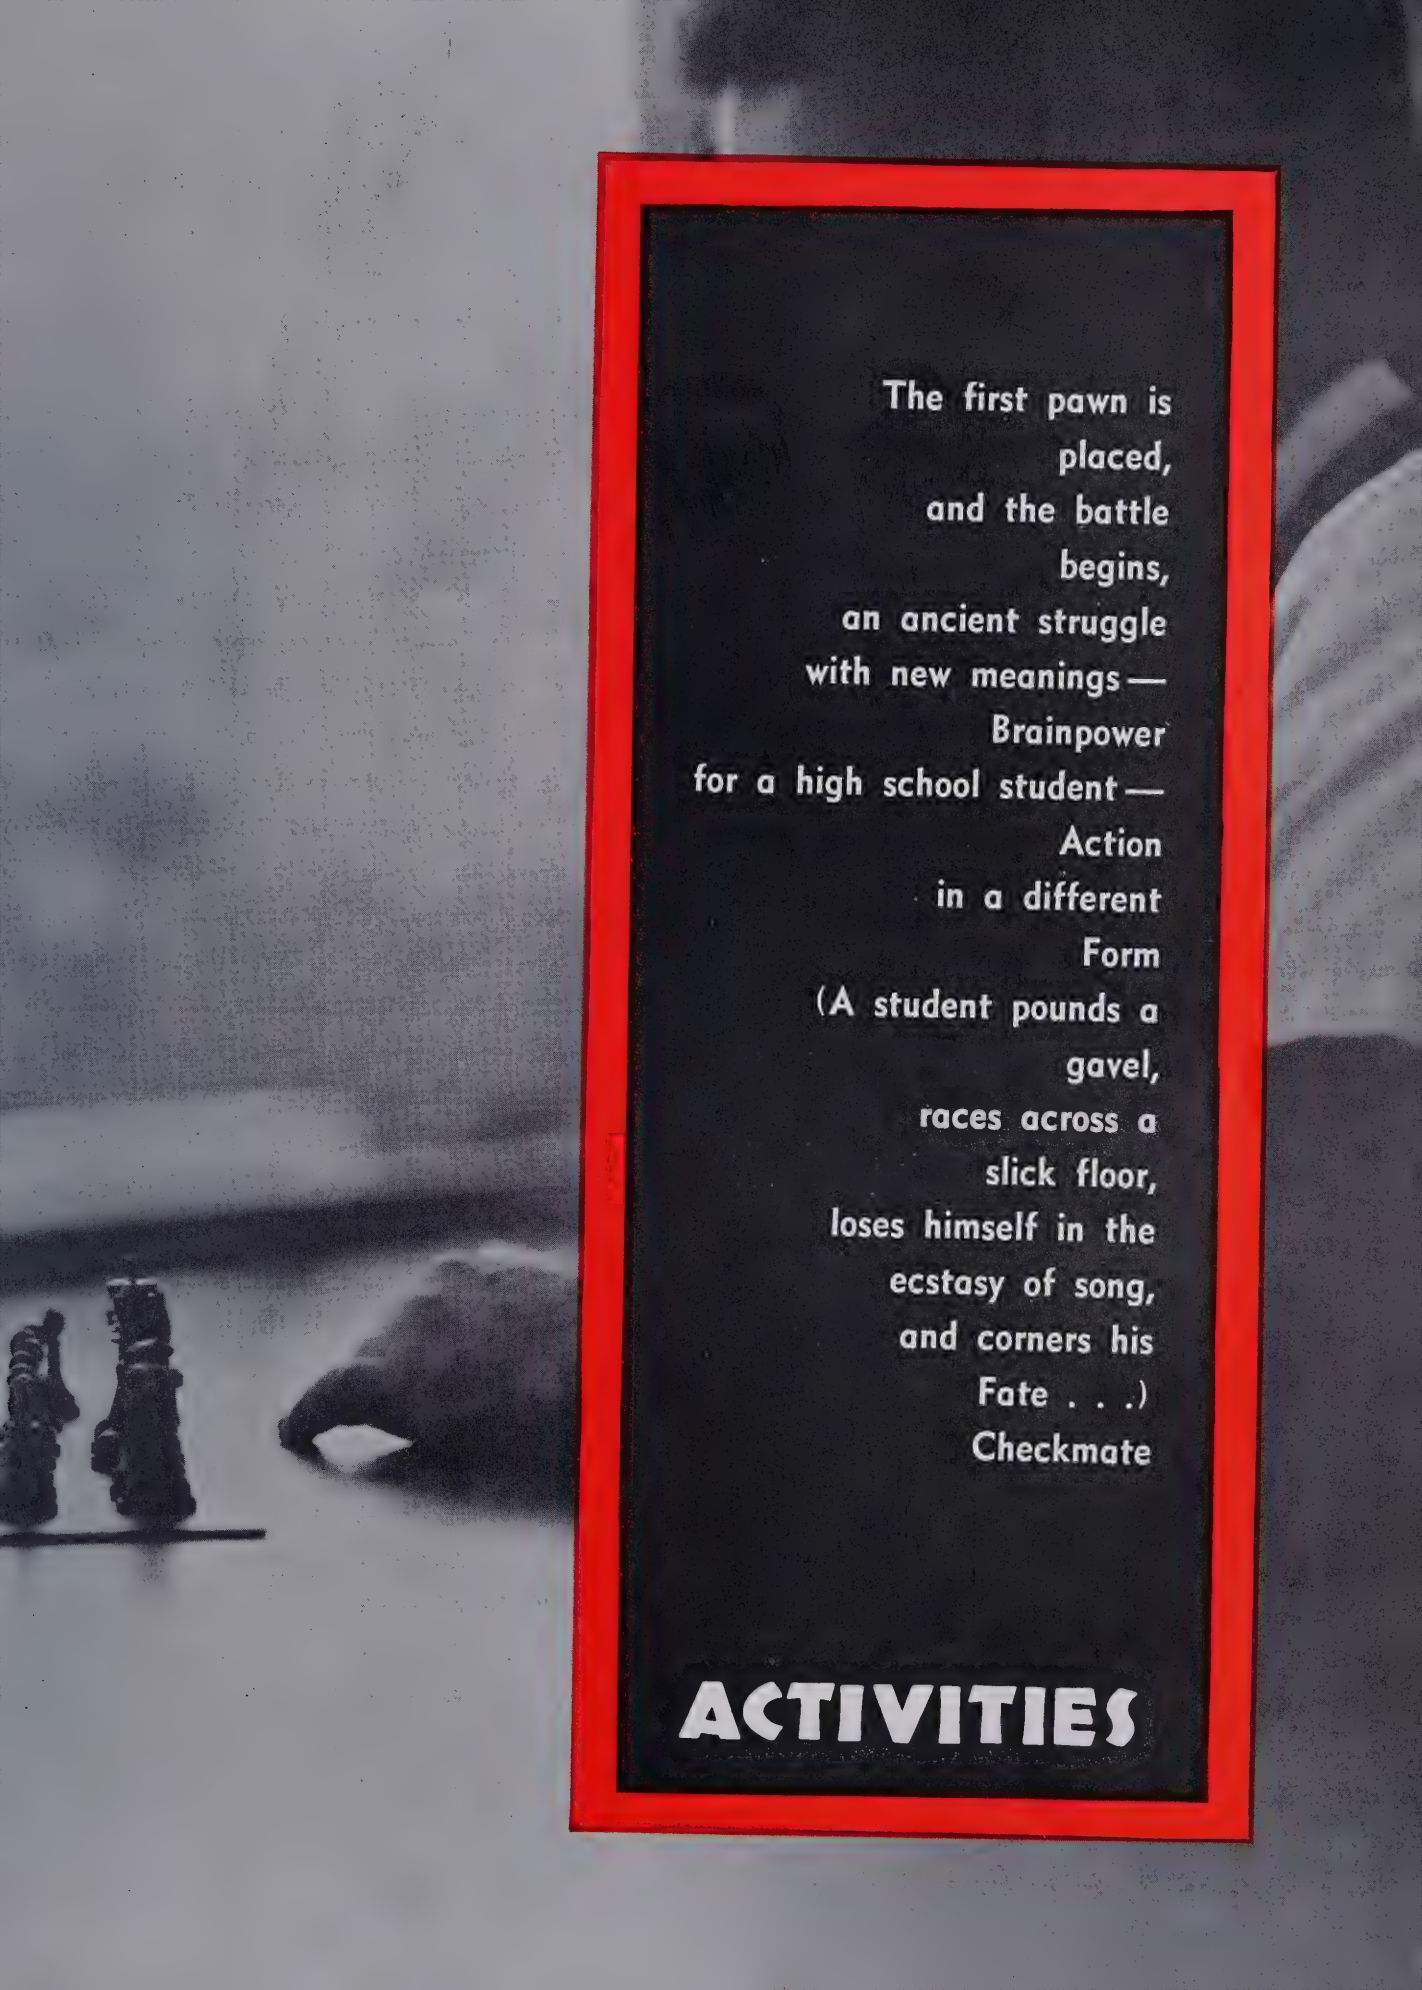

A day of noticing might reveal—Mr. Sullivan, hurrying down the hall to check a light switch or repair a pencil sharpener; Mrs. Powell, answering an early morning call with, "New Hanover High School;" Mrs. Davis, coming to a student's rescue by finding that lost geometry book; Mrs. Lodor, sending in an order for more chicken; Mrs. Brinson, soothing a student's unwanted headache with aspirin; maids closing windows, locking doors, and sweeping the long, dark halls.

A staff of indispensable workers—our assistants.

Mr. Sullivan, Custodian, hurries in to find more duties awaiting his attention.

ACTIVITIES

Amidst the fury of enthusiastic excitement, students rushed to the polls to vote for school officers. Risking life and limb, the vigorous campaign managers frequently achieved acrobatic marvels while hanging posters from the rafters of Brogden Hall. But slowly the mass pandemonium subsided; the last of the posters were ripped from their positions; the final votes were counted; and three rising seniors emerged as the student body officers.

Madly weaving his way through crowded halls, Milton Sikes — equipped with gavel and cryptic notes — dashes into room 407 where he suddenly assumes an official air of dignity. ROTC Cadet Lt. Col. Loughlin, skilled in command, raps loudly for order among his company of 70 house members; while "Bubbles" Cherry bursts gaily into each weekly cabinet meeting with papers bulging from her minutes book and an acute case of writer's cramp.

Student Body campaign creates enthusiasm.

Milton Sikes, President

Dale Loughlin, Vice-President

Cabinet applies new use to old motto.

"Hey! Don't open that door. Oh no!" A startled secretary of hospitality jumps quickly from her car and rushes to the rescue of the football team's fruit which is rolling aimlessly down the center of Market Street. Dodging the waves of traffic, she finally gathers the missing items but wearily finds herself more battered and bruised than the colorful collection.

Applying a new use to an old motto, cabinet members prove that neither rain nor sleet nor the 5:00 traffic jam can keep them from their duties.

Trapped! These after-school cabinet meetings certainly have their disadvantages for Dale Loughlin, Judy Farmer, Gail Hines, and Hampton Tillery.

Loading the team's buses with fruit presents definite opportunities for cabinet members John Bowen, Susan Pearson, Ernie Lane, Beth Peacock, Jane Cherry, and Brenda Beale.

Wonder when the president will call this "cabinet" meeting to order? Shown are Jay King, Brenda Bame, Woody Hartgrove, Milton Sikes, Clem Morgan, Eddie O'Neal, Stanley Broussard, Larry Woolard.

After wheeling out the victory bell, Senator John Bowen joins the student body in a rousing cheer.

Senators Brook Holman, Beth King, and Sherry Graves momentarily dispense with the customary method of money handling.

Looking in on a typical Senate meeting.

Senators originate finance bills.

"The meeting will now come to order." Impossible! No one would even dare to think that this simple statement could create such a wild confusion of flying papers and books; but like magic the cluttered table of the senate room is completely cleared before the second strike of the gavel.

"I'm sorry, Tim, but we just can't appropriate money for a swimming pool." Since the senate is the only branch that can originate finance bills, many lively (and often extravagant) suggestions occur.

Even NHHS has its lobbyists.

House makes rules.

Hurried feet darting quickly across the slippery wet pavement on a seemingly endless journey from the Industrial Building—a crowded lobby, almost impassable through the wild assortment of madras—roll call, minutes, bills, motions, discussions—Robert's rules of order! What's that?—more discussions—finally, a decision. The gavel raps—the house adjourns.

House officers discuss agenda before gavel sounds.

Chairmen serve homerooms as aides.

"Help! No! Honest, I didn't give your WILD-CAT to someone else." Dispatchers for most of the NHHS publications, homeroom chairmen sometimes find distributing WILDCATS and telephone directories a dangerous assignment.

"Larry Williams! I DO TOO have a subscription to the Wild-cat," cries Mariana Nicks.

"Really, Mrs. James, it would be so much easier—why don't we just give everybody a 100 on this test?" Aiding both teacher and class, the chairman rarely loses perspective but often disposes his sundry duties with ingenious skill and speed.

An abundance of sophomore homeroom chairmen make the twirp dance a success.

National Honor Society upholds high ideals.

At induction ceremonies members of the Honor Society, nervous and excited, await the first note of "Moonlight Sonata."

"I hope they tap me on my left shoulder—that's my good side, you know!"

"Moonlight Sonata" sends chills up spines. Suspense; proud grins; happy hearts; new, shiny pins; character, scholarship, leadership, and service—the National Honor Society is many things.

"One's own light can shine without his blowing out another's." Ideals of integrity . . . they are one.

"You are my sunshine, MY ONLY SUNSHINE . . ." This is a supper meeting!

HANDBOOK is a handy guide.

Senior Eddie Fitzsimmons is absorbed in checking over the requirements for induction into National Honor Society.

"I thought the Twirp Dance was this week! I've asked him three whole weeks in advance!"

Moral: the Orange and Black Handbook is a handy and reliable reference guide to school functions.

Members of the Orange and Black Handbook Committee are Judy Bradshaw, Elaine Fussell, Brenda Smith, Pamela Long, and Larry Bohannon, chairman.

TELEPHONE DIRECTORY has a sales boom.

"Oh, you say this isn't Mary McLean? Mmmm. Well, I'll talk to you anyway."

"Wonderful! I've got a term paper and a history book report due tomorrow and memory lines for Tuesday, and my mother will not tolerate it; but I'd much rather talk to you."

"Guess what! You'll just never believe this . . ."

Such talking marathons are facilitated by the use of the handy telephone directory inversely proportional to the amount of homework attempted.

This year the staff was really "on its toes," as this year was the telephone directory's best year.

Flickering candles, lit by the candle of truth, symbolize the virtues of journalism. Those who hold these candles at the induction service are members of the Quill and Scroll Club, the International Honor Society for High School Journalists. These budding young journalists, standing in the upper one-third of their class, are chosen on the basis of their streaks of literary talent and ingenuity that have helped add "the touch that counts" to the Wildcat and the Hanoverian.

Ingenious plotting is characteristic of chess.

"... Please bring your chess board and men." And riotous laughter fades into "Checkmate, to you!"

Tension mounts. Crackers are shoveled continuously between hungry jaws — food for thought. Pawns, kings, queens, bishops, knights, and castles . . . Medieval life is revived in a fierce spirit, tinged with craftiness. Wadded cellophane wrappers—concentration, an empty drink bottle — an ingenious move, and a yelp—checkmate.

Members of the Chess Club — Larry Galehouse, Eddie Snyder, Alton Hines, Lynn Dwyer, Gene Gregory, Trenton Wilson, and Warren Hodges — are enthralled by their chess game.

Bible Club strives to bring religious Hardly a day passes that the daily bulletin does not announce a Bible Club committee meeting. Operating under a system of committees organized specifically for the varied activities, the Bible Club imparts service to the school and the community.

During the Cuban Crisis students sought comfort and found the deeper understanding of God. The members keep the teachings of the Bible close to their hearts and strive toward righteous living that incorporates religious principles into everyday lives.

Pam Darden saves a nurse many steps by wheeling a patient to and from X-ray.

And who wouldn't want to ask questions with Margaret Fonvielle and Anita McDonald at the information desk?

A telephone jangles, flowers arrive, helping hands here, there, in the corridors—on the job, giving time, energy, a quiet word. A tingling peal of laughter rings out, subdued by the realization of life, death, hanging in the balance—weighed down by human action. All this and more, much more, makes hospital service genuine joy.

Ann Primrose, Nancy Mote, and Tiny Poisson always observe "Quiet, please" signs while delivering flowers.

French Club members sponsor annual banquet.

Irma Bell Bulluck brings her contribution to the French Club Banquet.

"Will this meeting please come to order?" shouts the president of the French Club. The members chatter on, oblivious of his pleas. "Who'll volunteer to bring the dessert for the banquet?" Nervous coughs explode throughout the room as each person waits for the other to volunteer. A punch from the side causes a girl on the back row to jump. The president's eye brightens. "Aha! You must bring the dessert!"

This couple illustrates the fact that "French is the language of love."

Thespians present TWELFTH NIGHT.

"Hurry up, it's almost curtain time," Ronnie Register whispers to Billy Phillips, seated.

"Has the curtain gone up?"

"Let me see the script!"

"What's my first cue?"

"Do I enter stage right or stage left?"

"Turn the spotlight on!"

Mr. Guthmann, the director, is besieged with every kind of question as the cast in colorful Elizabethan dress rush about finishing their last-minute preparations. This is dress rehearsal, and one or two actresses are still uncertain about their lines.

Opening night! When the lights dim and the curtain goes up, everyone knows what he is going to do! As the Thespians of Hanover's first production this year, the excited all-girl cast presented an adaptation of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night. Frequently throughout the school year, as the Thespians perform to give us a variety of drama, they hurdle many obstacles and are ready to star behind the footlights on opening night.

Carole Benton, Judy Andrews, and Barbara Eagleson listen as Carole Madeley accuses, "Sir Toby, there you lie."

Diane Davis exclaims to Donna Vaughn, "My dear brother!"

After Twelfth Night is over, the entire cast rejoices.

Catherine Gregg says lovingly, "Olivia (Peggy Stewart), my love!"

Peggy Stewart laughs and thinks, "Your foolish intentions are to no avail!"

"Carl! Carl, get that snake!" This frantic cry rang out during a recent meeting of the Future Scientists of America.

With equal excitement, the club subsequently embarked on a tour of Old Brunswick. Here the students discovered that archeology is both a peek at the past and a challenge to their future interest. "But wait! Where is our advisor?" was the startled cry as in ebullient spirits the members called good-bye, and the driver swung the homebound bus around the first curve.

"And this is Telstar," concludes the speaker to the enlightened FSA members.

Library Assistants aid fellow students.

"Where do you stamp the book?" asks the embarrassed library assistant. The senior tiredly points to the line and turns to leave, almost colliding with a second assistant who is riding a book cart. Band presents Yuletide concert

The red and white bus rumbles down Market Street as it carts the band of NHHS on its first out-of-town trip to perform at halftime during a football game. Nervously, everyone shouts and screams to everybody else, trying to prove that they really are not afraid. Upon their arrival they are quietly trembling. But when half-time begins, they automatically go through their intricate maneuvers just as they had practiced them. As the bus departs for home, one student rushes frantically to the front NHHS concerts inspire music appreciation.

Hours of practice run into weeks and months as music students prepare for a concert. Perfecting phrasing, word pronunciation, breathing—they give all their ability to reproduce exactly a music score. Eventually each part is harmoniously combined; and with skilled direction and determination, the singers elate their audiences with music appreciation.

Coaches Davis and Brogden mold varsity teams.

Coaches promote skill and sportsmanship.

Behind every good team is good coaching, and New Hanover High School's athletic record indicates a great deal of both. Head Coach Leon Brogden has become the dean of the state's coaches. He and Coach Jap Davis have combined their efforts through the years to produce varsity teams with the desire to win and the habit of doing so.

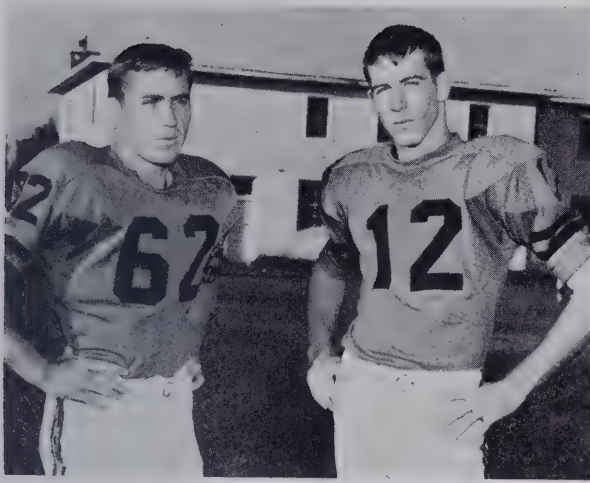

Mentors Brogden and Davis mold the varsity football, basketball, and baseball teams. Davis also coaches the golf team. Instructors Toddy Fennell and Buck Hardee ready the jayvee football and baseball teams for varsity duty. Fennell and Semi Mintz coach the Wildkitten basketball team. Mintz, a new member of the New Hanover coaching staff, also guides the tennis team. Another new arrival is track coach Frank Farrow. Reviving the defunct track team, Farrow compiled an outstanding record in his first year at NHHS.

Mentors Farrow, Mintz, Fennell, and Hardee coach a variety of sports.

Wildcats strive for victory.

Co-captains Jim Holloman and Billy King were standouts on the squad.

Starting the season in early September, the Wildcats made the long trip to Lynchburg, Virginia, where they were defeated by the defending Virginia state champions of E. C. Glass High School. After dropping another non-conference game to Burlington, the 'Cats came on strong to rout Raeford 24-0 for the season's first win. While the Giants lost four games in the World Series, Wilmington's victory bell was silent for an equal number of contests. Quarterback Billy King's passes were accounting for 77 yards per game to lead the league, but injuries plagued the 'Cats. Rocky Mount went over Wilmington 25-6 in the conference opener, and the defending champ Raleigh Caps walloped the wounded 'Cat grid-ders 21-0. Reeling New Hanover was then overwhelmed by a fired-up Jacksonville eleven which charged to a 27-0 victory. In the contest with Goldsboro the 'Quake fullback deflected a Wilmington pass in his own end zone to prevent a winning 'Cat touchdown and save the Goldsboro victory in the last seconds of a hard-fought game.

And a fine homecoming it was as Wilmington downed the Cys 38-6 with a six-touchdown bombardment! The 'Cats closed their home season by completely outclassing the Wilson eleven. Billy King, Jack Best, Jimmy Wolfe, Charles Fox, Jimmy Burris, and Delmar Milliken rolled over the opposing grid-ders for TD's in the melee. Wilmington also scored its first two extra points of the season off the right toe of guard Ronald Russo.

The Wildcats lost a rain-spattered tilt to Durham High 13-6. The 'Cats defense began to click, but penalties, which stopped a drive and called back a touchdown, took their toll on the Wilmington team.

In the last game of the season Fayetteville made quick use of two fumbles to hold an aroused Wilmington club to a 14-6 defeat. The 'Cats made it to the Bulldog six in a valiant effort to tally, but a fumble stopped the drive in the last seconds.

Kittens gain strength and agility.

After losing the season opener to a strong Goldsboro eleven, the Wildkittens beat tough Needham Broughton of Raleigh the following week to pick up their first win of the season.

The Kittens were handed their second loss when Enlo-High of Raleigh converted two last quarter Kitten fumbles into winning touchdowns.

In their following game the Kittens battled Fayetteville to a close finish, but the Bullpups came out on top 7-6. The next week Fayetteville came to Wilmington. The Kittens, playing on their home field, broke loose with a powerful offense that ripped into the Pup line and drove over the goal four times to whip the visitors 27-0.

'Cats take conference trophy.

The 1962-1963 New Hanover High basketball team started off the season in good style by vanquishing the Jacksonville Cardinals 88-57. Hitting over fifty per cent of their shots, the 'Cats broke the game open in the third quarter with repeated fast breaks.

Next on the agenda was a two-day road trip to Columbia, South Carolina, where the Wilmington cagers faced Columbia and Brooklyn Cayce high schools. The Wildcats easily tamed Columbia, 68-54, on the first night, but had trouble in overcoming Brooklyn Cayce, 50-45, in an overtime victory on the following night.

In the next contest, an opening period blast by the Wildcats foretold doom for the Campbell College freshmen. The 'Cats made it their fourth victory in a row with a lopsided 70-47 tally over the Camels.

In a return engagement with Jacksonville on the Cardinals' court, the New Hanover five did it again in the third quarter for their second triumph over Jacksonville, 74-53.

Closing out pre-Christmas play, Wilmington defeated High Point, 59-53, in a game that was in doubt until the final thirty seconds. Alert defense and strong rebounding made the difference as the Wildcats chalked up their sixth straight victory.

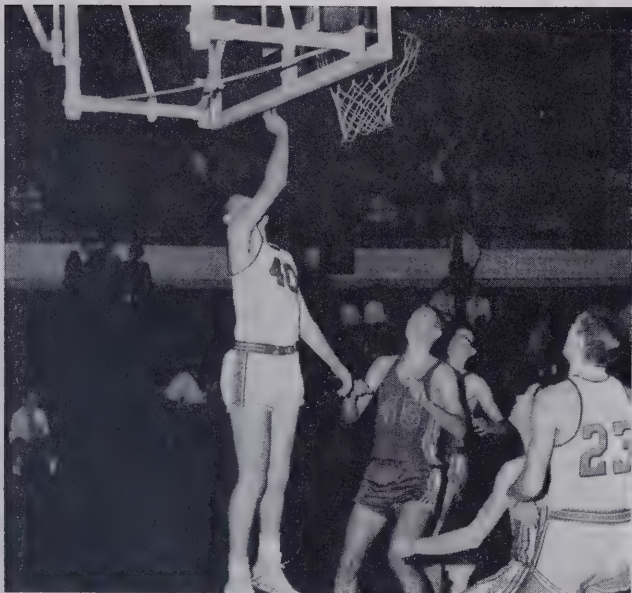

Co-captains Danny Mohr and Billy King were leaders on the court.

The 'Cats, however, lost their rabbit's foot in the first game of 1963, dropping one to the Campbell freshmen on the Buie's Creek court. Hampered by cold shooting, the locals saw time run out with the Camels in the lead, 52-48.

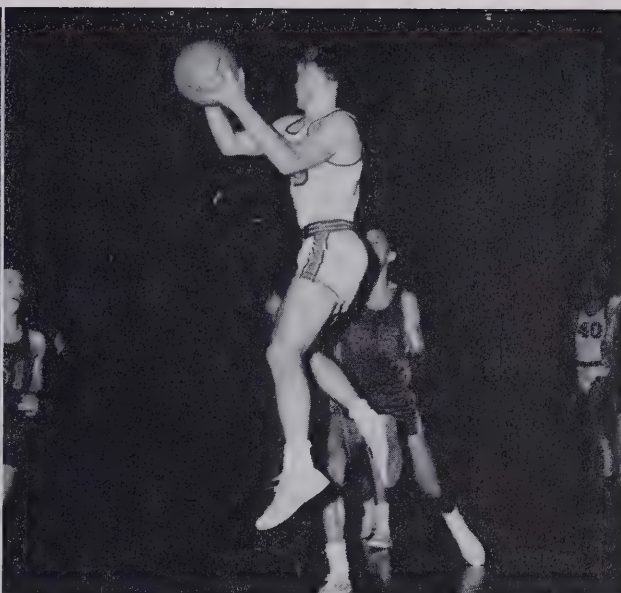

Making a strong comeback in their first 4-A conference game, Wilmington defeated the Raleigh Caps, 52-42. Ex-Raleigh guard John Nicks and reliable Danny Mohr led the scoring of the New Hanover squad.

In the following conference tilt, the Wildcats slipped past Rocky Mount in a 36-35 thriller, but Wilson next slowed down the Wilmington title rush with a 53-39 setback on the Cyclone court.

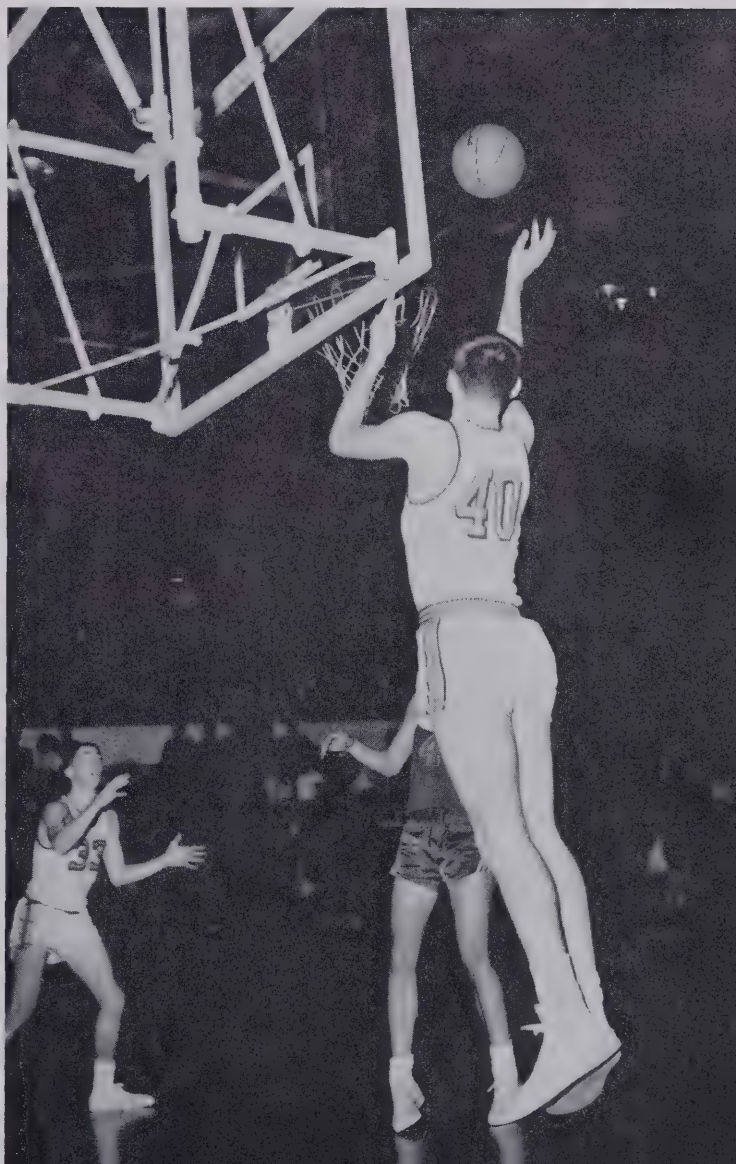

In the next game, with the Goldsboro Earthquakes, the Wildcats returned to the winners' circle with a 37-24 defeat of the home team. The 'Cats grabbed the victory despite a rally by Goldsboro and slow-down tactics all through the game.

The Wilmington cagers then defeated a scrappy Raleigh club 59-50 despite a slow start.

On the following night the Wildcats met the Fayetteville Bulldogs in Brogden Hall, and, after trailing for the first three quarters, put on a last-quarter burst that left them ahead of the Bulldogs, 42-41, as the buzzer sounded.

Playing the first of two road games scheduled for that weekend, the New Hanover five lost to Durham, 66-59. Unable to make foul shots, the 'Cats saw the league lead taken from their hands. On the following night, however, the 'Cats took the lead again with a narrow 50-48 victory over Rocky Mount.

The Wildcats went on to defeat Wilson, 55-50, for a 7-2 conference record.

The 'Cats held on to their lead with a 55-44 victory over Goldsboro.

Wildcats take Eastern AAAA Title.

The New Hanover High baseball team roared into its '61-'62 season by winning two exhibitions and taking its first conference game by defeating the Fayetteville Bulldogs.

The 'Cats, however, were stopped short by a hot Raleigh nine in the next conference tilt, 13-7. Herb Darden whacked a three-run homer in the third inning to share batting honors with Jimmy Wolfe and Bobby Kaylor. Relief hurler Jim Moore took the loss.

But the 'Cats remounted their winning streak, beginning with a 5-3 triumph over the Goldsboro Earthquakes in the next contest. Wilmington came from behind with a three-run rally in the sixth and held the lead. Herb Darden pitched a four-hitter for the win.

New Hanover then clawed Rocky Mount, 10-2, for a third conference victory against one loss. Eddie Lemon's brilliant pitching held the Blackbirds to three hits, compared to eleven by Wilmington sluggers. From the third to the seventh, he retired thirteen batters in a row. Shipp homered in the fifth for the winners as Jimmy Wolfe sent three Wildcats across the plate with a double and two singles.

The fired-up 'Cats went on to thump the Bulldogs of Durham 23-12. Fifty-five players reached the bases in a Baserunner's Day at Thirteenth and Ann. Wilmington first baseman Bobby Shipp stroked a home run, a triple, and three singles to drive in six runs. Herb Darden was awarded credit for the victory.

The next victims were Wilson's Cyclones, downed 9-2 by New Hanover. Shipp collected another homer, and Darden chalked up his fourth win of the year without a loss. While allowing but three hits, he struck out thirteen opponents.

his fifth victory in six games as Lemon batted in three runs on two singles.

In the final conference tilt the Wildcats sailed to an easy 9-1 decision over Wilson to clinch the Eastern 4-A conference championship. New Hanover finished up with a final conference record of 9-2. Rocky Mount and Raleigh, top title contenders, dropped from the picture with losses. Eddie Lemon went the distance for the champs, hurling a two-hitter and retiring fourteen enemy batters. Bobby Shipp slammed his sixth home run of the season to pace the 'Cats. Lemon's multispeed curve completely bewildered the Cyclones. The chunky left-hander upped his strikeouts to fifty-one as Shipp batted in his thirtieth run of the season.

In the first half of a two-game exhibition with Greensboro, the Central 4-A champs, Wilmington slapped eleven hits to win, 11-7. Darden went the distance to strike out fourteen losers. Butch Watts and Glen Mills were outstanding hitters for the 'Cats.

Again the New Hanover nine rapped Greensboro as two undefeated pitchers clashed, and Eddie Lemon went the distance for an 8-4 victory. The Wildcats finished the season with an overall 13-2 record.

Gridders elect sweetheart.

Excitement mounts in the crowded Union as Henrietta Gieschen, head cheerleader, steps forward to announce the team's choice of Varsity Sweetheart. The sound of applause fills the air as Brenda Beale's name is called. Billy King and Jim Holloman, football co-captains, crown the '63 Sweetheart and present her a bouquet. By the cheerleaders' vote Billy King becomes Mr. Touchdown, and Jim Holloman receives, by vote of the team, honor as the Most Valuable Player. Bobby Coleman and Bryan Farrow take their places as '63 co-captains.

Girls boost team spirit.

Exuberant and enthusiastic are the only two words to describe NHHS's cheerleaders. Bursting with school spirit, they bring the house down at pep rallies and tenaciously fight for the victorious end at ballgames.

There is no better sales person than a cheerleader. She'll run up and down the halls, week after week selling ribbons and 'mums. After all, who could resist buying a "Beat Raleigh" ribbon from a pretty girl?

Led by head cheerleader Henrietta Gieschen, the cheerleaders set better standards of school spirit during Sportsmanship Week.

Coach Davis demonstrates the proper grip.

With the warm days of spring nearing, the members of the New Hanover High School golf team head once again for the fairways to try a few drives and sharpen their putting. Under the coaching of Mr. Jap Davis the Wilmington team has exhibited great ability in representing New Hanover High School in past years. This year's team was strengthened by the return of several members from the 1962 squad. The long hours of practice put in by the team members really pay off for them when they are in actual competition with other high schools. Tennis team has speed and experience.

As winter gradually fades, the local tennis courts are taken over by members of the New Hanover High School tennis team. The boys eagerly strengthen their play in preparation for another season of tough competition in the Eastern 4-A conference.

This year's team is under the skillful guidance of new coach Semi Mintz. A former Davidson ace, Mintz

The 1963 tennis team has a pair of two year veterans returning along with several members from last year's team. During the long hours of practice the team members learn helpful hints from the coach, try to improve their playing standards, and practice good sportsmanship.

GAA provides instruction through activity.

The New Hanover High Girls' Athletic Association is a branch of the state organization. The association was formed to promote interesting girls' athletic activities, to create competition which develops character and sportsmanship, and to promote the apportionment of adequate time for a physical education program which meets the needs of various age groups.

Its members do not have to be in physical education class. The girls pay yearly dues and may stay after school for organized activity in the girls' gym.

Legislative power of the local club is vested in the Athletic Council. This year's officers are: President — Louise Flynn; Vice-President — Sharon Efrid; Secretary — Kay Jordan; Treasurer — Candie Suggs; Social Chairman — Rose Kannon; Sports Coordinator — Sherry Shackelford; and the two reporters — Marsha Grass and Brenda Fink.

Mrs. Jean Tillitt, girls' physical education teacher, is faculty advisor for the group and takes great pride in the GAA. At all times she is ready to demonstrate the fine points of tumbling, a dance step, or any other activities in which the girls participate.

The activities of the GAA are many. Points are awarded members for participation in organized activities. When a member has accumulated a sufficient number of points, she is presented with such awards as a school shield or gold pin. The girls wear them proudly to show their regular participation in activities.

There are a tumbling team and a dance group which perform regularly for the public at various times during the year. Volleyball, a sport taken up early in the year, is very popular with the girls. Everyone plays in the round-robin tournament held to decide which team is best. Extra points are awarded to the winning eight along with congratulations from the other players.

Basketball, an old favorite, is played during the colder months. Its team members also have a tournament to see which five will get the coveted extra points.

Badminton has many participants, as this is a very interesting indoor sport. Though the rules are complicated, once mastered they lead to hours of excitement.

For those who like to prove the hand is quicker than the eye, there are the ping pong tables. For the budding acrobats there is equipment such as the trapeze, bar, and ladder. Almost everyone likes to perform stunts on these fixtures. Besides these, there are a countless number of other activities for the girls' amusement and physical fitness.

Presenting colors are Rodney L. Caulder, Alexander Hart, Jr., Robert D. Lennon, and Paul B. Woodson.

"Eyes, right!" The school flag is dipped and the members of the Color Guard look to their right as they "pass in review." Whether in the heat of early fall and spring or in the buffeting, icy winds of the late fall and winter, members of this formidable team, marching shoulder to shoulder, bear the national and school colors at each formation. With the passing of the colors, pride swells the heart of each cadet because the colors are the most important symbol to any military unit.

Four color bearers and one alternate, chosen from the ranks of the NCO's, serve on the Color Guard. Each week the Color Guard is inspected by Cadet Sgt. Maj. Fox, who sees that these cadets always maintain an exceptional appearance.

As a counterpart of the Cape Fear Rifles, the Color Guard has marched in the Azalea Festival parade, the Homecoming parade, the Teenage Princess parade and pageant, and the Christmas parade at Rose Hill. The team also marches at each formation and all home football games.

Rifle Team acquires new firing range.

This year the Rifle Team acquired a new range adjacent to the ROTC classrooms, and members of the team worked diligently hauling sand and painting the range. Cadets Foleck and Cooper, two NCO's on the team, composed the paint detail one morning. Cooper loved the job so much that he suddenly gave Foleck's glasses a generous swipe of green paint and retreated hastily. Foleck's brush followed in vengeful pursuit, but the target ducked. The noise of the skirmish brought Sergeant Miller roaring: "All right! Which one of you guys decided to give the wall another coat of paint?"

This is the year of the new look in ROTC. The Garand Marchers are officers; the Cape Fear Rifles have a soloist. It doesn't rain at the homecoming game . . . it freezes. Band is larger than ever before.

Cadets of the Band Company not only provide stirring marches for all regular ROTC formations but also play special music for Christmas and for the festival in the spring. This year the band is larger than it has ever been and continues to sound better every time it is heard. At times, though, its members do seem to be jinxed—the morning the band commander's whistle wouldn't give even the weakest blast; the moment his baton slipped; the day the drummer led the rear rank in a navy London Fog—but dauntlessly their music quickens our spirits and sharpens our cadence.

Marchers capture Pershing Drill Meet.

"Double, double, toil and trouble."

Sergeant Webb boils when Burton bobbles.

Sixteen-count manual, Baker manual, cartwheel formation, order arms, port arms, or Gorilla Twist makes a normal performance seem like a new dance craze. Shining stocks, boxing rifles, cleaning uniforms, and shining shoes prelude an April trip to Atlanta and a win in the Pershing Rifle Drill Meet where the Marchers perform on the college level. Red and white helmets are in evidence at many Battle Group Formations. Precision is the watchword in this typical year in the life of the year-old Garand Marchers.

Precision is the watchword.

"Is it true that blondes have more fun?"

After learning, comes leading. Two years ago unsure cadets were just starting to learn. Last year the learning process was intensified. This year, cadets of 1960 are officers in New Hanover High's Battle Group. Eighty sharp officers lead the ROTC program through the year. From commissioning — when a befuddled girl asks, "Do all of you wear those skirts?" — until homecoming, drill is stressed. When December comes, so does the ROTC Ball, and the officers join the ranks of society. During the Azalea Festival in April, emerging under its officers is an Honor Battle Group. In the course of his three years of military training, a cadet officer matures from an obviously amateur cadet to a competent director.

NCO's maintain efficiency in BG.

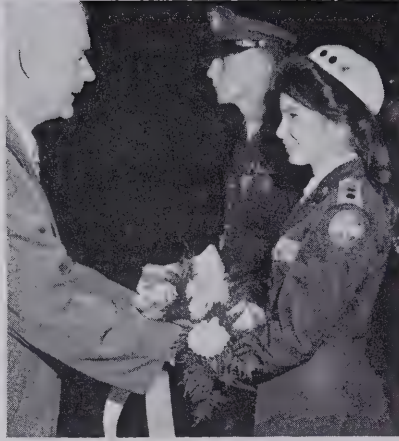

"Fall in! Report! All present! Two men absent! All present! Posts!" Commands, some snappy, others sleepy, are heard each day as the NCO's in each company take the report. The NCO's direct the corps of cadets, endeavoring to keep everything strictly S.O.P. Some NCO's, veterans of the blitz-cloth and the brush, teach first-year cadets the diligent art of polishing brass and shining shoes. Someday maybe a few of the lazier NCO's will use Kiwi, instead of heel and sole enamel, to polish their boots and shoes.

Wednesday! Squad leaders, amid the odors of gun oil and rig, direct their squads in the care and cleaning of the M-1 rifle. As first-year cadets learn to open the bolt of the M-1, purple thumbnails, known as "M-1 thumbs," are common.

Although the NCO's are proficient from the previous year's service, they continue to learn week by week. As they instruct first-year cadets today, the NCO's develop the traits required of officers and leaders of tomorrow.

Janice Wilson, Bobby Bohannon and Gayle Sanderson are the sophomore class officers.

Sophomores—like fawns learning to walk. A little timid and unsure, but wide-eyed and curious. Hearts are filled with anxiety and excitement, for this is a new challenge—a fresh, green world holding tremendous opportunities. They start out, one foot in front of the other, confused but wanting to learn.

Soon the sophomores are stable and secure. They take on responsibility and elect those who will speak for them in Student Congress. They prove their initiative in presenting the Twirp Dance and show their school spirit in cheering their ball teams. This new world quickly surrounds them with work and play.

The first year at senior high closes. The once shaky sophomores realize that they have achieved much. Their experiences have helped them stand on their own feet and think for themselves. The foundation laid during this year will help them in the many tomorrows that follow.

JUNIOR CLASS

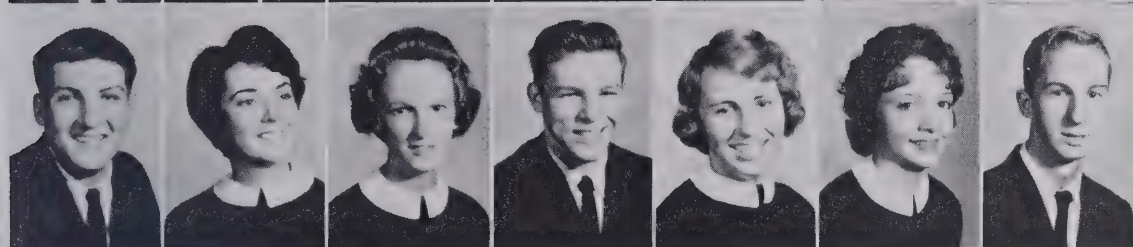

Bob O'Quinn, president; Judy Bradshaw, secretary; Pauline Mebane, vice-president, meet the obligations of their class.

Juniors—really part of high school . . . part of a puzzle that now begins to fit together—the pieces made up of the laughter of friends, the smile of a teacher, memories of the past, dreams for the future. Yet in the midst of these—reality. The excitement of measuring for class rings; voices that say, “what color are you going to get?” “Do you like smooth or cut surface?” Juniors at every ballgame, their cheers echoing their thoughts—This is our team. We will push her on to victory. The duty of electing those most capable to serve as Student Congress officers, the dazed but honored feeling of those taken into the National Honor Society. Work; study; mid-term exams—the close of the year seems very distant. At last it comes and with it the Junior-Senior Prom, climaxing class activities. The juniors look back at the pieces they have added to the puzzle. The picture of tomorrow forms.

SENIOR CLASS

Secretary Diane Moore, President Woody Hartgrove, and Vice-President Susan Pearson fulfill the duties of their class.

Seniors — life lived to the fullest. The thrill of senior privileges — using the senior steps, being the first to leave in assembly. The realization that this is their last year. This must be the summit of all, the unforgettable. Hearts beat faster as seniors go to their final ballgames, attend that last dance, bang their lockers for the last time. Everything around them is now meaningful.

Memories of the past flash by. First exams, the chemistry test failed, the oral book report not prepared, the good feeling in watching the flag being raised, the day that cold stare of a teacher turned to a smile. The happy times, the sad times — all wound up into three never-to-be-forgotten years.

Memories give way to plans for the future — college or jobs. The world that is theirs. The tomorrow of responsibility is here.

The soaring whiteness of a modern building
stabs at the sky
with a stony thrust,
Glistening, glowing,
the symbol of the will to win
and the struggle to succeed . . .
Striving and straining,
the free spirit
of a Free World,
rocketing —
Toward Tomorrow
